of Massachusetts Soldiers' Relief Association, Washington, D. C. GENTLINEN: It is not often that I have an in-vitation extended to me which it would give me more real pleasure and satisfaction to meet and accept than yours, which I have now the honor accept than yours, which I have now the honor to acknowledge. No duty occupies more of my mind, or lies more nearly at my heart, than that of caring in every possible way, and with all possible tenderness, for our Massachusetts sick and wounded soldiers. Therefore, to you, the ladies and gentlemen of the Massachusetts Soldiers' Relief Association, I am especially grateful for your kind and efficient labors in this direction.

it is a matter of great grief and anxiety to me, that, though I feel it so deeply to be my duty and my privilege to take all possible care of each and every soldier from Massachusetts-knowing each to be a hero, whatever his military rank—I have, owing to causes which you, my coadjuotes in the same work, can doubtless appreciate, so little power to act definitely and efficiently. Believe me, your labors meet here with the warmest appreciation. Massachusetts has seat over 70,000 men to the field, besides more than 19,000 who have callsted in the navy; your care and kind deeds for any one, therefore, cannot fail to be gratefully felt in many hearts, and at many firesides.

Accept my wishes, that you may have a plea-int meeting, and believe that I should not fail be with you if imperative duty did not hold ne here.

I have the honor to be your ob't servant,
JOHN A. ANDERW,
Governor of Massachusetts. SPEECH OF SENATOR WILSON.

follows:

Mr. President: I received an invitation to come here to-night, but I did not understand that I was expected to make a speech, nor did I expect to meet here more than a dozen persons interested in this association. I do not deem it necessary before this assemblage, most-level, I believe, of persons from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, to present an argument to show the necessity of doing all we can to relieve the sufferings of the men of our State who are in the service of the country. The statement made here to-night officially, will go to our own State; will go to the country; will show that the persona engaged in this organization are doing all that the means placed in their hands will permit them to do to relieve the sufferings of the soldiers of Massachusetts.

It has hancered air, that I have had an on-

It has happet ed, sir, that I haye had an optive the persons interested in this association and connected with the State agencies, and I say here what I believe to be true, that these persons have labored with great fidelity and industry, and that the means placed at their disposal have been honestly and faithfully used. A believe this, sir, and, belleving it, I am reads the fidelity to contribute whatever is demanded of me to carry on this work. The means the following the properties of the proper

Hon, Samuel Hooper being called upon, said:

Mr. President: I came here without any expectation of being called upon to address this meeting, but simply for the purpose of having others. I regret to say! know very little of the doings of this society in detail. But while ignorant of its actions in detail, I am well aware of its general objects and have always felt a deep interest in them. I beg you will excuse me from making a speech, for I would certainly rather give a hundred dollars than do so.

The President. I think, sir, the society will agree to compromise on that question. (Laughter,) ponse to numerous calls, rose and spoke as follows:

I must say, Mr. President, it looks very natural to see you in the chair. (Laughter and applause.) It makes it seem as if I were at home in Massachusetts. I know full well that you, sir, are always wherever the interests and character of Massachusetts are in question. I have not come here to night to make a speech. I came here to listen to the reports which have been read, and because I would not fail in bearing such testimony as I could, or my presence, to the character of the association. I take it, sir, that your society may be considered another illustration of what may be accomplished by organization. All that any single individual can do, however charitable he may be, is small, but let that individual unite with others, let him bring his contributions, his labors, and his activities into combination with the contributions, labors, and activities of others, and you cannot fail to achieve important results. And such I take to be this case of this association. The object proposed is worthy of any combination. It is an object which appeals at once to benevolence and to partiotism. (Applause.) To relieve the sick has always been a Christian charity. but to relieve the soldier.

iam. If there be any one unable to wield the weapon of battle, one unable to leave his boine, your society may make a fit appeal to such. Massachusetts may well bosst of her charities. At home our honored State is covered over with charitable institutions, but that spirit of charity, of which we are so proud at home, ought not, in its influence and in its operations, to be confined to State lines; it ought to go surely wherever there is a Massachusetts soldier. [Applainse.] It should be just as efficacious as if we were at home upon our own soil. [Applainse.] It is sometimes said, "Charity should begin at home;" I say, in this case, charity should begin at home;" I say, in this case, charity should begin wherever the Massachusetta soldier can be relieved. OAR HALL CLOTHING HOUSE, No. 40 nothing for Men and Boys' wear that the mark SPEECH OF BON. MR. RILLOT.

MR. Parsident: I wish it might be in my power to contribute such pleasure by my speech as we have derived from the music which has come from our friends who have just entertained us. And yet, in commencing the few words that I have to rasy, I must enter a protest against the principle of a part of the speech which came from our friend, Judge Thomas, in point of fact, the speech beind its preface; or he began by saying that speech was no wanted, and could effect nothing here; whereas before he had concluded, he satisfied us all that thing which begins the work in these days. Massachusetts is prone to speech. I thank God that she is, and to resolution, to action, and to work, also. All come from the old Bay State.

Mr. E. alluded to the Massachusetts winkle of a free library for the use of soldiers, established in this city, and which now numbered 2,300 volumes. It was for the benefit of soldiers from all States, though the funds so far had been furnished by Massachusetts means, and was the happy thought of a Massachusetts man. The library's flag was the contribution of Dorchester girls, and the furnished man, and was the happy thought of a Massachusetts mean, the library's flag was the contribution of Dorchester girls, and the furnished man. The library's flag was the contribution of Dorchester girls, and the fair librarian (Miss Rumsey) gave her services free.

Hon. Mr. Alley said that, as a semi-Quaker, he could attest to the good work done by the Society of Friends during the war. In his own city (Lynn) no people had been more disposed to contribute, and several thousand dollars had been raised by them for the relief of sick and wounded soldiers.

been raised by them for the relief of sick and wounded soldiers.

Remarks were also made by Rev. John Piers post, Hon. Mr. Rice, Judge Russell, of Boston, Hon. Mr. Gooch, and others, and the "Star Spangled Banner" and "The Rebel Flag" were sung in spirited style by Miss Rumsey, and among those who joined heartily in the chorus we noticed a venerable lady, whose age and gray hairs had not dimmed her partfolkin, and who, when the subscription paper appeared, gave further evidence of her feeling by a liberal contribution.

Washisoron, September 26, 1802.

As you are well aware it has never been expected by the President that the insurgents should protract this war until it should exhaust not only themselves but the loyal States, and bring foreign armies or navies into the conflict, and still be allowed to retain in bondage, with the consent of this Government, the slaves who constitute the laboring and producing masses of the insurrectionary States. At the same time, the emancipation of the slaves could be effected only by Executive authority, and on the ground of military necessity. As a preliminary to the exercise of authority, and on the ground of milliary necessity. As a preliminary to the exercise of that great power, the President must have not only the exigency, but the general consent of the loval people of the Union in the border slave States where the war was raging, as well as in the free States which have escaped the scourge, which could only be obtained through a clear conviction on their part that the military exigency had actually occurred.

It is thus seen that what has been discussed so carnestly at home and shroad, as a question actual condition of the war and the state of opinion in the whole country.

No one who knows how slavery was engrafied upon the nation when it was springing up into existence; how it has grown and gained strength as the nation itself has advanced in wealth and power; how fearful the people have hitherto been of any change which might disturb the parasites, will contend that the order comes too late.

The Results of Emancipation.

BY M. AUGUSTIN COCHIN.

M. Gasparin's Works on America.

So little is positively known of the conomical and social results of emancipation in those countries where it has taken place, that the importance of this volume to the people of the United States, in the present crisis, can havily be over-estimated.

The work was written at the suggestion of the office of the conomical control of the conomical control of the conomical reports, and its statements, which have been devery form of the question, are fully reliable.

M. Cochin is an ex-maire and municipal council into of the city of Paris. He has had great advantages for research among both public and private documents, and has devoted his life to the subject on which his forthcoming volume treats.
